“Delores and Newt used to be my neighbors when we lived in Holiday Island. I lived around the corner from them down by the campground. Many times I would pick Newt up for Holiday Island Singers. I would give Delores rides to choir practice or council meetings. Newt taught my husband Ted how to make walking sticks and Adirondack chairs. Delores taught me how to be a good church secretary when she resigned from that post, and how to be a Sunday school superintendent when she resigned. I loved them both very much and am looking forward to seeing them again in heaven!

Delores and my mom were great friends. Delores got my mom Wilma Hagquist working at the Eureka Springs Hospital thrift shop, the Purple House, which she managed until a few years before she went to heaven.

They were the first hospitality chair women at Holiday Island Baptist Church, and basically got to set up the kitchen. I'll bet they are having a great time reminiscing in heaven!
