Ilene was the first person my mother met over the phone from Michigan before she moved here, they became fast friends and they stayed good friends. We will see you again.

“ The moment I realized Grandma was hip! I spent the night with her and was in her bedroom plundering through a basket of music cassettes, and amongst all the old fogie cassettes was a "Men at Work" one? I was confused....and questioned what I was seeing. When I came to conclusion that it wasn't mine, I went and asked her whose it was. To my amazement she said it was hers. She had heard them on the radio, liked the song and bought the cassette. I was more confused, but I bought the story, because she was "Grandma", and the story was so outrageous it HAD to be true!!
