“ I enjoyed knowing Jimmy. He was a character all his own. He could make you laugh, but think at the same time. The stories he would tell would have you rolling for days. He was also a generous man and would help you the best he could. He was definitely a man that would teach you it's not about the materialistic things in life, but the people you choose to share your life with. He was a friend to all with a simple smile or a boisterous hello to brighten your day. ”
