“ *Lee (Sissy) was the spark of our family. Her joy of life enlivened our house, especially at dinner time. Lee’s humor would have all of us laughing. Her influence on her siblings set a standard that we all tried to match and when our attempt at something funny fell short we could always say: “Sissy would do it better”.
You will be missed by so many.*

“ little known facts: in 1961, lee could belt out “a thousand stars” without the radio. in 1967 she appeared (uncredited) in the opening scene in denver airport of “the born losers” (the first “billy jack” movie) and outside macdonald's in woody allen's “sleeper” in 1973.
