“ All of my first childhood memories are with you. I can still hear you calling me and Beca from miles away with your "heeeeup" sound that echoed the neighborhood. I have always been so proud to say that you are my uncle, especially when we would hear the song that goes "baby baby babyyyyy" in the truck after a long adventure and you and aunt Stacey were always so proud to hear me sing along. I could be here for years speaking on all the memories because if there was one thing I know you were good at, it was making sure everyone around had an amazing time. Everyone knows you weren't the most affectionate man, but last Easter when I seen you, you made sure to come up to me and hug me and tell me how much you love me, had I known it would be the last I would of held on a little longer. I know my daddy was was waiting in the cloud for you and was probably one of the first to show you some love. I know y'all are woods riding and going to the heavenly river together like the old days. I love you so much and I find joy in knowing how much peace you feel now and even though we may not be feeling the same peace down here, but I know each and every one of us will keep your memories alive.

Fly high and rest easy Uncle Billy Bob, Love Shy Shy

“ He was part of the family. In fact, if he hadn't had the ingenuity that he had, I'd still have a broken down Juke sitting in my yard. LOL! Only those that were there will laugh at this post!
